NEW YORK—(AP)—Colonel Edward M. House, 79, internationally known as a close advisor to President Wilson during the trying World War era, died Monday after a long illness.

Colonel House served as a personal representative of President Wilson at the Supreme War Council at Versailles, December 1, 1918.

He was designated to act for the United States in negotiation of the armistice with the central powers.

Highway Program for Arkansas to Begin This Week

$6,500,000 Road Construction to Start With Bailey's Signature

FEDERAL FUNDS SEEN

Barney Highway Measure Would Qualify State for $4,300,000

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—(AP)—A few strokes of Governor Carl E. Bailey's pen this week will start Arkansas on a $6,500,000 highway building program extending from the dirt roads of hill counties to trunk line routes touching principal cities. The highway department forecast major construction by early summer.

That the governor would sign into law administration measures for road construction and maintenance approved by the legislature in a special session ended Saturday was a foregone conclusion.

They are the Barney bill to qualify the state for $4,300,000 in federal funds, the Wilkes bill to free $1,000,000 for maintenance, and the Coleman bill providing $500,000 for maintenance, repairs or the matching of federal aid money.

Terms of Program

The present highway system embraces some 9,000 miles of concrete, blacktop, gravel and dirt roads. Every line would be eligible for funds, in addition to thousands of miles of country roads not on the system, under terms of the far-reaching program.

Elaboration of administration leaders over legislative action was not dampened by the possibility of litigation which might delay operations. A minority faction in the assembly predicted that constitutionality of the measure by Senator H. M. Barney of Texarkana would be the subject of a court battle on the contention it violated the 1934 refunding act.

Mr. Barney, chief engineer for the highway department, said that trunk line construction by June 1 would be possible if legal negotiations between the state and federal government were disposed of by May 1. Much of the detailed technical work was done prior to issuance of the special session call.

Slow For Past Year

Highway work has been at standstill since early in 1937. In 1935 and 1936 the government granted construction funds to the state without the dollar for dollar matching requirement, due to an amendment tacked on to the federal highway act by the late Senator Joe T. Robinson.

In 1937 this governmental policy came to a close. Arkansas was allocated $1,300,000 in road funds but there was a proviso that they must be matched. Arkansas had no money for matching its funds from the gasoline tax and auto license fees being pledged to debt service under the 1934 bond refunding act.

Last year congress passed an act providing that where state eliminated toll bridges they would be paid half the original cost of the spans, if they had been built since 1927 and met other requirements.

This provided the inspiration for the Barney bill which abolishes tolls on state owned bridges. Highway department officials believe all but two of the bridges DeWalls Bluff and Ozark meet the government's specifications. They too will be free of tolls, however.

Free Bridges in State

Zass told legislative committees the highway department expected the United States Bureau of Roads to release a maximum of $3,500,000 to the state for freeing the bridges. Part of this could be used for matching to qualify the state for the $1,300,000 allocation for the biennial period ending June 30, 1939.

"The first step in getting the program under way will be the submitting of the Barney bill to the bureau of roads," Zass said. "Certain legal phases must be disposed of in that connection."

"Then the state is required to submit detailed data, specifications and blue print on the bridges. Much of this work has been done by the engineering department and everything will be ready to go in a short time after the new Arkansas act is passed on by the bureau of roads."

The federal agency will take up the release of funds on a unit basis, considering one bridge at a time. For instance the $1,000,000 Cleveland bridge

Not To Be Candidate

CONWAY—(AP)—The Conway Log Cabin Democrat said Monday that Brooks Hays of Little Rock, regional attorney for the farm security administration, had written to the newspaper that he would not be a candidate for congress from the fifth Arkansas district.

Congressman Terry of Little Rock, has announced for re-election from that district.

Meet Scheduled on Auto Testing Law

Mayors Will Gather to Decide on Possible Court Action

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—Mayor R. E. Overman said that member cities of the Arkansas Municipal League possessing automobile testing stations would send representatives to a meeting here this week to decide whether court action should be taken to prevent enforcement of legislative action requiring the state automobile testing law.

Thirty municipal and 50 private stations were established under the testing statutes.

Hope Team Winner Debating Contest

Hope Student Also Wins Honors in One-Act Play at Meeting

The debating team of Hope High School and the One-Act Play cast went to Arkadelphia last Saturday to enter the district contest for the University of Arkansas.

The debate question was "Resolved: That the several states should adopt a uniform system of legislation," and is being debated by all the teams at the various district contests.

Those winning first and second places will compete in the state contest which will be held in Arkansas the first Saturday in May.

Hope High School debaters debated eight times at the contest Saturday, and won seven out of the eight debates, losing one by a 2-1 decision.

The team is coached by James H. Pilkinton of the high school faculty, who won national recognition as a debater during his student days at college.

Charles Crutchfield won first honors for boys in the one-act play cast, while Dolores Tolleson won first honors for girls. The cast is coached by Miss Mildred McCance of the high school faculty.

Six Found Guilty for Drunkenness

Short Court Docket Heard Monday by Judge Lemley

Six defendants pleaded guilty or forfeited cash bonds in municipal court Monday on charges of drunkenness. The court docket, although small, consisted of city, state civil cases.

John Weller, L. Dickinson and H. Hall all forfeited $15 cash bond for drunkenness. Marcus Forner entered a plea of guilty to drunkenness and was fined $10.

E. B. Egan and C. W. Griffith forfeited $10 cash bonds or drunkenness. Honey Davis was convicted on a charge of petit larceny and was fined $25 and sentenced to a day in jail for theft of a bicycle owned by Hanson Miller.

A charge of operating a car without license against Fay Scroggins was dismissed on motion of Prosecutor W. S. Adams.

Judge W. K. Limley ordered a $50 fine and court cost against C. A. Vandiver, charged with trespassing, to stand, although the judge dismissed an order for Vandiver to pay cost of some timber he was charged with cutting.

In civil court the case of R. M. LaGrone, Jr., and Co., against Tom Yerger for action in replevin was dismissed on motion of the plaintiff.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The nation's railroads began charging higher freight rates at midnight Sunday night.

They put into effect rate increases averaging slightly more than five per cent, which were authorized recently by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Holding Company Act Is Held Valid by Court Ruling

Requires Inter-State Concerns to Submit Financial Statements

DECISION SUSTAINED

Arkansas Tribunal Upholds Circuit Judgment at Fort Smith

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The United States Supreme Court held constitutional Monday provisions of the public holding company act requiring interstate holding companies to register with securities commission and submit financial statements.

Chief Justice Hughes delivered the opinion that affirmed a ruling by federal circuit court at New York which upheld the registration requirement.

The litigation involved directly an electric bond and share company and 25 subsidiaries.

"To escape penalty in enforcing provisions of the decree," Hughes said, "all that the defendants have to do is to register with the commission and assume obligations to file a registration statement."

"All their rights and remedies with respect to other provisions of the statute remain without prejudice," Hughes declared.

Must Serve Sentence

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—The Arkansas Supreme Court held Monday that Ernest Craig, Fort Smith labor union worker, must serve six months in jail and pay a fine of $250 for rioting at Fort Smith last August 13.

The riot grew out of a labor disturbance at the Tucker Duck and Rubber company.

Three employees of the company were injured during the alleged riot. The court's decision upheld a Sebastian circuit court judgment.

Oil Seizures Climax 20-Year Strife Below the Rio Grande

Wild Scenes Staged in Cities and Towns When Cardenas Announced Decree Expropriating Foreign Oil Properties

By NEA Service
Mexico oil has been more or less of an international headache for more than 20 years. With the government moving rapidly to take over American oil properties and interests valued at around $200,000,000, a crisis has been produced which is the least of a long series centered on the rich Mexican oil fields.

American oil interests in Mexico, considerably less valuable than British, have been decreasing for more than a decade. But they are still extensive.

Three great American companies, Standard of New Jersey, Standard of California, and Sinclair, have interests in nearly 5,000,000 acres of Mexican oil lands, and maintain refineries, pipe lines, storage tanks, railroads and other equipment. They are the survivors of many companies which crowded into Mexico from the United States when the oil boom came to that country 25 years ago.

American Discoveries
The Mexican oil fields were discovered, for practical purposes, by Americans. In 1900, E. L. Doherty and Charles A. Canfield began exploration, and blew in their first practical well in 1904 near Tampico. Lord Cowdray and his Dutch Shell interests were close on their heels.

The present phase of the problem began in 1917 when a new constitution was adopted by Mexico declaring for the nationalization of petroleum resources.

The World War had dislocated world oil markets by withdrawing the Russian fields from production, and the rush for oil that followed the war boosted the importance of the Mexican fields until at one time they were producing 25 per cent of the world supply.

"Black Gold"
There was a rush for Mexican oil lands and concessions, to riches was made, and many a "rags to riches" tale.

Contest Will Give Fans Idea of Team for Next Season

Coach Foy Hammons announced Monday the probable starting lineup that will take the field Tuesday night in a gridiron contest that will terminate spring practice for the 1938 Hope High School football team.

The game will start promptly at 7:45 o'clock. The officials were announced Monday as Burl Thompson, Bill Somerville and Earl O'Neal.

The admission price will be 10 and 25 cents, the money to be spent to purchase track equipment and to buy honor sweaters for this year's high school basketball team.

Many To See Action
Between 30 and 40 athletes who have been reporting daily for practice will see action in Tuesday night's game. The squad:

Ends—Fulkerson, Ward, Jones, T. Turner, Green and Ellen.

Tackles—Simpson, Calhoun, Walker, Snyder.

Guards—Still, Quimby, Watson, Breeding.

Center—Taylor.

Quarterback—Samuels; Fullback, Daniels; wingbacks, Easton, D. Parsons, Baker, Coleman.

The Opposing Squad
Here is the team that will oppose the high school squad:

Ends—Willard Anderson and Ray Turner.

Tackles—Dick Moore and Grady Quimby.

Guards—Freeman Stone and G. V. Keith.

Center—Carson, Bearden or D. Richards.

Backfield—Vasco Bright, Nobel Masters, K. B. Spears, Edward Aslin, Lowell McDaniel.

Woodrow Parsons, slated to start at guard position, has developed mumps and will be unable to play.

Improvement Seen for Bodecaw Road

May Be Graveled From Bodecaw to Border Line

IRESCOTT, Ark.—Contracts calling for the graveling of the road from Bodecaw to the county line have been approved by Wayne P. Fletcher, district WPA supervisor, and submitted to the state WPA officials.

County Judge J. W. Bradley said that he anticipated no difficulty in securing the approval of the state authorities.

Approximately four miles of the Bodecaw road have already been gravelled. A number of the first gravel contracts have been fulfilled, Mr. Bradley said, but he believes the second contracts will be approved by the time the remaining haulers have fulfilled their agreements.

The second contracts call for the improvement of the road from the point where graveling by the first contracts ceased to the county line. The second contracts will carry the improvement about three miles further, making a total of some seven miles of gravelled road.

Work was begun on the Cale road about three weeks ago. Beginning at the Prescott end, workmen have graded and gravelled about two and a half miles, completing the improvement as they go. It was said that three crews of men, seven WPA trucks and equipment belonging to the county are being used on this work.

This section of road was the subject of discussion at a meeting at Coney church about a month ago when Prescott Chamber of Commerce officials met with citizens of the Cale community. Mr. Fletcher and the county judge to find means to speed the improvement of the road, said to be almost impassable after heavy rains.

Judge Bradley said that many of the bridges which were washed out earlier in the spring have been replaced. Almost all the roads which serve as thoroughfares for mail carriers or school buses have been placed in good condition, he said, leaving only a few smaller bridges on less important roads still to be rebuilt.

Cemetery Planned
Persons interested in establishing a new cemetery at New Hope community are urged to meet at 11 o'clock Sunday at the New Hope church. At that time plans for the cemetery will be discussed.

Grotius, a 17th century Dutch jurist, is regarded as the founder of international law.

Second Appeal Is Made for Workers

Persons Wanting Jobs Are Asked to Gather at Postoffice

A second appeal was made Monday for 50 or more radish pullers to aid in the harvest of the Hempstead crop. Announcement for help was made by G. T. Cross of the U. S. employment service.

Mr. Cross said that all persons wanting jobs are asked to gather at the post office corner, Second and Walnut streets, at 7 a. m. Tuesday.

A truck will be there to carry workers to the field. Approximately 30 persons were given employment Monday.

Mr. Cross said that recent favorable weather had hastened the crop to maturity.

Vote on Revision Bill Due Monday

Opponents of Bill Are Accused of Spreading Propaganda

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Two senators supporting the government reorganization bill accused opponents of spreading misleading propaganda against the measure.

In last minute radio broadcasts before the senate votes on the issue Monday, Senator Byrnes (D., S. C.), and Schwellenbach (D., Wash.), contended that similar reorganization proposals had been advanced by Mr. Roosevelt's last five predecessors in the White House.

Under agreement reached last Thursday, the senate is scheduled to take a test vote at 3 p. m. Monday. That will be on a motion to send the bill back to committee.

Should the motion prevail, the bill undoubtedly would be shelved for the rest of the session. If the motion is defeated and administration leaders predict it will be a vote on passage scheduled to follow at 5 o'clock. The same leaders expressed equal confidence the measure would be approved.

Asserting that senators were being flooded with telegrams urging them to send the bill back to committee, Schwellenbach said "once again our nation's leading breast beaters, both in and out of the senate, have discovered another dark plot by the president to destroy our form of government. The bill provides that the president do the reorganizing. You ask—why should the president do the reorganizing? You say, why should not congress sit down and figure this out and do it? Whether we like it or not, over 60 years' experience has proved that congress can't do it."

Byrnes asserted that those who have

Governor Bailey to Sign Measure Before April 1st

Ten State-Owned Bridges Would Become Free With Signature

BIG TURNBACK FUND

County Judges Would Get One Million to Build Dirt Roads

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—(AP)—Governor Bailey said Monday that he would sign the Barney toll and highway bill before April 1 so that counties could receive additional turnback funds at the regular apportionment on that date.

The Barney bill would increase the county turnback from one-half to three-fourths cent a gallon on the gasoline tax and appropriate $1,000,000 from the increase to build farm-to-market roads.

Prospective tourists will be able to cross Arkansas without paying tolls on any of the 23 bridges on its main highway system.

The special session of the legislature which ended Saturday sent to the governor for signature bills intended to free all all-state-owned spans from tolls forever.

The state now owns 10 toll bridges which will become free as soon as the governor signs the Barney bill, number one administration measure.

Ten district-owned bridges already are free and the legislature appropriated funds to pay their current obligations, referring to the people a proposed law under which the spans would become property of the state.

The assembly appropriated $120,000 to be used in purchasing two privately-owned toll bridges which would be come free as soon as they were bought.

The only district-owned toll bridge in the state made free when the governor signed into law a bill requiring the district to use surplus funds on hand to pay off its outstanding bonds.

Tolls on Ferries

State Highway Director W. W. Mitchell said that if the toll bridges were freed, as planned under the bills passed, the only charges motorists would have to pay to cross Arkansas streams were those asked by six small ferries operating in isolated rural sections. None of the ferries are on main highways.

The state-owned toll bridges which would be freed under the Barney law are located at DeWalls Bluff, Fulton, Garland City, Calton, Felsenthal, Ozark, Augusta, Newport, Cotter and Clarandon.

The privately-owned bridges which would be purchased are located at Des Arc and Powhatan.

The district toll bridge which became free with enactment of the Forhand law is located at Index.

Goodbye Gay Vienna! Heil Stern Adblf!

THE Nazis have finally extended their benign guidance to what used to be Austria and gay. Dreamy Vienna henceforth may be about as gay and dreamy as Philadelphia on a dreary winter Sunday.

One of the major tragedies of the Hitlerization of little Austria is the certainty that the be-good-or-be-beaten discipline that the Nazis so dearly love will be imposed on her capital. Vienna, where for many centuries good food, beautiful women and gay dancing have been considered among the most important things in life, may feel the puritanical influence of the Nazi reform mania.

Wiener schnitzel will be broiled in some imitation butter, because the Nazis must have guns instead of butter. The beautiful women will be sent to camps to learn farm work or they may be told that their place is forever in the home, for they must be ready to do their solemn bit when the big war comes.

LEISURE, long looked upon as an art in Vienna, will of course be something to be forgotten for there can be no unemployment—much less anything like leisure—in a Nazi state. In short, the Viennese must stop having fun and be quick about dedicating their lives to the greater glory of Herr Hitler and his ideas of how the world should be run.

In this befuddled world the Nazis are true missionaries. Nothing makes a good storm trooper happier than the knowledge that he has changed the way of living of some erring soul and brought to him the stern light of national socialism. And right there you have the aspect of Nazism that is more irritating to a lot of people than the more sinister phases of the Germans used to be just about the world's jolliest people. It was a rare German indeed who was not dominated by the spirit of gemuetlichkeit. But Herr Hitler apparently has changed them into a nation of crusading zealots.

Not long ago it was even decreed that the Germans would consume no beer this spring. Got away with it, too. Whatever you think of Der Fuehrer you must admit that he accomplishes things no man ever dared dream before the advent of the Nazi regime.

BUT when Herr Hitler finally gets everything he wants—which is quite a bit—what then? Will the German people be happy? Ordinary human beings—and that is just exactly what the Germans fundamentally are—ask more pleasure of life than the Nazis are willing to permit.

So for the present: Heil Hitler, Vienna, and forget all those champagne parties, grand balls, and the light and care-free spirit that made you famous. As the capital of a Nazi state you now have a mission, and the fulfillment of that mission leaves no room for the enjoyment of living.

Music Hath Charms

BECAUSE the WPA furnishes free music, what was once just about New York's toughest neighborhood has become very social minded. Indeed a window may not be smashed for days as a time. The youths who used to run in the gangs are down at the Boys' Club dancing with their girls.

A very respectable dance it is, too, each young man bringing his own young lady and stars being forbidden. Admission is free and a Federal Music Project orchestra plays. The dances are held at the Boys' Club at 321 East 111th street. Oldest institution of its kind in the world, the club was founded nearly 70 years ago by E. Rosland Harriman, Sr. Mr. Harriman was visiting in the neighborhood when a rock crashed through a window in the room where he sat. His hostess explained that the boys engaged in such activities to use an excess energy.

Clyde Bingham, superintendent of the club, says that this new chance at recreation means a lot to the youths in that section, where most of the families are on relief. And so a WPA project that might seem pretty useless under other circumstances turns out to be a good thing.

The Family Doctor

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Many Are the Dangers That Lurk in the Home.

(No. 485)
People commonly indicate that someone is exceedingly well cared for by pointing out that he is "safe at home." Now strangely the figures show that more people are hurt at home every year than are hurt on streets and highways in industrial plants or in other places.

One person dies every 14 minutes in the United States as a result of an accident at home.

In the living room people slip on polished floors, and stumble over that curl at the edges. Children leave toy trains, blocks, marbles and other toys out in the middle of the floor. Open fireplaces toss hot sparks far out into the middle of the room and furniture moved from its accustomed place catches an unwary shin or the tip of the careless toe.

In the bedroom children roll out of bed, get smothered in the crib, or get suffocated by some careless adult who has taken them in bed to keep them quiet while they are crying. Women stand on chairs, telephone books, dresser tops and shaky ladders to fasten curtains and drapes.

In the bathroom is where the trouble really begins! People step into water that is much too hot and get burned before they can get out. They get under the shower curtains and turn on the hot water, getting a jet of live steam before they can get the heat turned off. The bottom of the bathtub is slippery enough without the piece of soap to aid the sliding feet.

Porcelain handles on water fixtures break and puncture the hand. Electric switches, vibrators and drying machines are used while people sit in the water and become accustomed at how much agony can be produced by a household current under these circumstances. Bathroom heaters throw out poisonous fumes of gas when inadequately supplied with vents, or fumes. In the medicine cabinet poisons are left in open bottles and razor blades catch careless fingers.

In the kitchen many of the hazards are multiplied by the fact that there is a slippery linoleum floor, that the heat of the gas stove is a constant menace and that the fire, cleaning fluids, coal oil, gasoline and similar dangerous substances are improperly stored away.

Modern interior decorating has done some terrible things to stairs. They are made without handrails. They are covered with loose ends of rugs or slippery towels. Children leave toys and play upon the stairs. The steps into the basement may be wholly without lighting. To save space circular staircases are made with insufficient room for even a woman's tiny foot and the stairs from the porch to the sidewalk become a menace when there is ice and snow.

Babies "Get the Idea" Long Before They Can Express It

(No. 49)
By the time baby is fourteen or fifteen months old, you may begin to wonder if you have a bright child, a moron or a genius. Should Jackie be able to build with his blocks—that is, with a plan?

If I were in your place, I would never set a zero hour for anything, or fix a standard in my mind for any accomplishment. Standards are poor things at best. Designed to give parents some idea of what to look for in their infants and young children, they are often discouraging and even alarming, when baby lags behind his contemporaries in the neighborhood.

But be comforted. Some children don't cut a tooth under 15 or 18 months. Many don't walk under 20 months.

Some skip all the tricks until they are months older. Baby does things his own way in his own good time.

What to Expect

However, to satisfy you, here are some of the things you may reasonably expect. By 15 or 18 months, control of bowels and kidneys should be rather well established. If not, better get to work at once with a will and do everything in your power to teach him. Be on hand at regular intervals to put baby on the small toilet. Give up whole days of it if necessary. It is not an impossible problem, but it can become one.

By eighteen months, Jackie may be able to hold a glass of water with both hands, and drink without much spilling. He also may be able to feed him-

"YOU committed Miss Wynne to a rather large slice of humble pie, didn't you?" Dr. Rogers went on, his eyes coolly amused on hers. "I wonder whether she'll accept her dismissal so gracefully in her own person."

His quizzical look faded, and he said with an abrupt resumption of his professional concern, "You're terribly tired, aren't you? Now I think you'd better go to your room and let me arrange to have your dinner sent up. Then go right to bed and get a good night's rest."

Constance's lip curled in angry amusement. . . . Rest. When, somewhere in the house was Derek. And so much to be said between them.

He was going on, "I shouldn't be surprised—" but Constance interrupted with dangerous smoothness, "You are about to say that you wouldn't be surprised if I had another difficult day ahead of me!"

SUDDENLY all the resentments and frustrations of the day flared up in a need to thrash about and hit out at some one.

"You don't miss a single detail, do you, Doctor? Life to you is an orderly pattern of nurses and obedient patients who trot off to bed when you send them, so that at dawn they may be up and doing—nice and adult, the way you like them."

"I was about to say," he said stiffly, "that I shouldn't be surprised if you wondered why Miss Thorvald hadn't shown up yet. I have an idea she's going to be annoyed with me tomorrow; but as a matter of fact, I have given orders that she must sleep as long as she can, because—"

"Don't tell me why. I know already," Constance cut in, her voice rising recklessly in a kind of triumphal chant, "because she's likely to have a difficult day tomorrow."

She was rolling on now with the rising tide of hysteria, without a chance of stopping herself, even if she had cared to try.

"I suppose," she rushed on, "that every evening when you're through playing with your funny little test tubes, you say to the squirmy things in them, 'Now just stop wriggling, my dears, and settle down for the night, because—'"

"Will you get into your room and keep quiet!"—with an apprehensive glance toward the door of the sick room, he advanced swiftly upon her—"or am I going to have to carry you in and hold you down in a tub of warm water?"

"—because," Constance brought out on a high, triumphant note before he smothered her hysterical mirth against the shoulder of his coat, "you may have a difficult day tomorrow."

He picked her up unceremoniously, carried her into her own room, and closed the door. For a few moments she laughed uncontrollably; then laughter gave way to tears. Wrenching herself free from his arms, she dropped face downward upon the bed, and sobbed as if trying to release, in a few brief minutes, the pent-up tears of the last month.

WHEN it was over, she looked up with a defiant, shamefaced stare to find Mark Rogers standing over her, his eyebrows raised, his hands in his pockets, his lips pursed in a thoughtful whistle.

"Well," he said grimly, "you win. You're a better doctor than I am, Gunga Din. . . . You knew what you needed, and you went and did it. . . . I wash my hands of you. Go to bed when you get damn good and ready."

Nevertheless, Constance's dinner was served in her room that night, and there she ate it.

She spent the evening hoping at every movement in the hall outside that it would be Derek coming to find her. It was very late, however, when a knock sounded at her door. When she opened the door, one of the Mexican servants stood outside with a note.

The senior Manthon, the man said, had told him that la ama de la casa wished this letter given to the Senorita.

"But I don't understand," Constance said. "Who—?"

"La senorita Thorvald, the senior told me," the man explained with a half smile. "In English la ama de la casa is mistress of the house."

Something in his look as he turned away—something furtive—puzzled and irritated Constance. It was as if he were secretly amused—tolerantly indulgent—as a Spaniard and a man of the world, at the incredible lack of subtlety of these naive Gringos.

When Constance glanced down at the sealed envelop in her hand, she thought she understood. The envelope was one of the kind Derek habitually used—as the servant must have known—had used ever since she had known him.

She thought, How childish of Derek—and how utterly like him. But what possible difference could it make if the whole house knew he had written her a note?

"Connie, dear," Derek wrote. "Back of the house is a grove of fruit trees. I will be there at eleven. The servants will have gone to bed by that time."

AND what, Constance wondered, had the bedtime of the Thorvald servant to do with her?

Then she remembered the time Derek had stolen up to her apartment after midnight bringing the news of Ernest Thorvald's first visit to his studio—and some sandwiches and a bottle of Amontillado to celebrate the event—absurdly secret about it all, boyishly triumphant over having eluded the curiosity of the second-floor back. . . . Derek was incurably romantic.

Constance laughed, threw an evening wrap over her entirely respectable lounging pajamas, and slipping silently through the sleeping house, hurried toward the grove.

The moon was high and unbelievably white, lighting the distant mountains with mystery and flooding the valley with magic—etching the vines about the house in dense black lacework against the creamy walls, while each pale flower stood out in startling relief.

As Constance sped along the fragrant hedge bordering the rear of the grounds, the sense of living in a dream that had been with her throughout the unpredictable happenings of the last twenty-four hours still held her.

It seemed the result of some strange miracle, after all these weeks of hoping and doubting and almost despairing, that within a few minutes she was to be with Derek again—without either of them having lifted a finger to bring it about. . . . Without Derek's having lifted a finger to bring it about, she remembered soberly.

Perhaps it was having to remember that which gave her this troubling sense of unreality, as if she had been handed a treacherous fairy gift, which might vanish at her first attempt to touch it.

Then she saw Derek waiting for her, and forgot everything else in the joy of his nearness.

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

When Incompetents Win Authority

One of the worst things about a revolution must be the weird crew of misfits, incompetents and blunderbusses who come straggling back to power when the revolution is overthrown.

A neat sidelight on this not-too-profound truth is contained in "They Sailed for Senegal," by D. Wilson MacArthur (Stokes $2.50).

This book tells about a naval expedition the French government dispatched to Africa a year or so after Napoleon had finally been shipped away to St. Helena. The expedition bore troops, civil officials and assorted hangers-on to take charge of the new French territory in Senegal.

Unfortunately, the admiral in charge of the fleet and the governor who was to take charge of the colony, as well as most of the subordinate officers, were pompous and grotesque nincompoops. They had been in exile ever since Louis XVI had been beheaded; now they were given jobs because the Bourbons wanted to reward their loyalty in opposing the revolution, not because they had any ability.

The flagship of the expedition ran on a reef off the African coast. It was wrecked by the admiral's complete incompetence; some scores of soldiers, sailors and civilians then drowned, died of thirst or starvation, or were murdered, because the admiral and the governor were almost fanatically unable to deal with the situation.

The admiral and governor sailed away for Senegal and got there without much trouble. They left their followers to die—in the sea, in the desert, or wherever they chose—and the record of what followed is not pretty. It is a valuable commentary, however, on what happens when important offices are passed out to men whose sole qualification is that they voted right.

McNab

The McNab Home Demonstration club meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Herbert Haley, March 21. Demonstration was given by Miss Melva Bullington on mattress making. Radie Gives Newcomers Chance at Movie Fame—Just About Anyone Can Get a Singing Audition

HOLLYWOOD—Radio is much kinder than the movies to newcomers in Hollywood. Only about one green aspirant in a thousand can get a screen test, but anybody can get a singing audition.

This is a priceless opportunity for the few who have the talent and looks to win encouragement and further chances from the broadcasting people, because it's a short jump from radio to movie studio. The flickers spend fortunes in the search for new talent, but the fact is that about half the vocal and dramatic finds have first come to attention on the air.

Few Make Grade

The Columbia Broadcasting System holds an open audition every Monday and Thursday in Hollywood, and I attended one of these hoping to be in on the discovery of a Deanna Durbin or a Kenny Baker. Nothing of the sort happened. Indeed, there were only two of about 30 people who were asked to return for additional warbling.

About 70 vocalists are auditioned by CBS every week, although this number includes a few repeaters who just won't be discouraged. Some of 'em are so paralyzed with fright that they have to try two or three times before they can even squawk a note. And there's one woman who has showed up on three different days to demonstrate her three different voices—with a Brahms lullaby, a ballad, and the St. Louis Blues.

Helping the Hopefuls

One of the first things a visitor notices is the consideration and assistance given these hopefuls. A top-notch accompanist and sound-mixer are provided. Bill Moore, in charge of musical auditions, is patient and polite and listens attentively. So frequently, do Laila Gluskin, the west coast musical director, and Charles Yunda, west coast program director. For men with trained ears, it must be a pretty painful experience.

"But we listen to everybody," Gluskin said. "Sometimes you think you can't stand another minute of it yet there's always the feeling that just possibly the next person who walks in

So many hearts are brave. Each day I see
The lifted banners of their courage shine
Out of the myriad eyes that look in mine
The banners mankind carry as they march
To prove that they are undefeated still
Though tired feet must often drag behind
Though there be scarcely strength to climb the hill
Brave women and brave men, who go their way
Without the blare of music down the street
Without the cheers, or the encouragement
Of words that should be heartening and sweet
So many have the courage to go on
Undaunted by their loss, or pain, or fear
Beaten perhaps, yet holding in their souls
The beautiful bright quality of cheer.
So many hearts are brave—though well they know
How rough the road is that their feet must go.—Selected.

Suspend Buying Mexican Silver

Purchases by United States Are Cancelled Effective April 1

MEXICO CITY.—(AP)—President Lázaro Cardenas Sunday announced the United States had cancelled its purchases of Mexican silver, effective April 1, in a move interpreted here as reprisal to Mexico's expropriation of her foreign oil industry.

Diplomatic sources said the effect of the asserted cancellation on Mexico's economy might be negligible for the time being, but was significant as indicative of a major shift of the policy of kindly tolerance extended Cardenas' three-year-old liberal regime by the United States government.

The United States treasury has been buying 5,000,000 ounces of newly mined Mexican silver each month, paying around $2,500,000 for it at artificially-maintained New York price which gave Mexico sizeable profits.

The Mexican government took over the $400,000,000 oil industry operated by 17 British and American companies on March 18. The drastic move followed refusal of the companies to comply with an arbitral award raising wages and other benefits of their 18,000 workers.

The fate of the Cardenas government was said to rest upon working out the difficult economic situation precipitated by the expropriation—a task made immeasurably harder, it was agreed, if United States support were withdrawn.

"We are prepared to prevent the effects of this decision from reacting injuriously upon our economy," Cardenas said.

"We desire that, once the nation learns of this fact, that it be judged with the necessary serenity and justice, since it is an act executed by the will of that (United States) government."

"We have taken the necessary steps so that the funds derived from the exploitation of petroleum be used preferentially for the development and utilization of the industry, and for the amortization of the debt contracted with the nationalization of petroleum."

"It is necessary to take into account also that the government of the United States has announced that the purchase of part of the (country's) silver production it has been making of Mexico will be cancelled after the first day of April."

Highway Program

and released $750,000, that amount would be available at once for construction. Then the negotiations over another of the bridges would start.

In the meantime the highway department could call for bids and let contracts up to $750,000, the theory being that new releases would be authorized on additional bridges by the time the $750,000 was under contract. Thus, a smoothly co-ordinated program will go forward until the summer of 1939.

Many have been under the misapprehension that if the state received $3,500,000 for freeing bridges, it could use this for matching and have $7,000,000 for construction. The grand total which can be received is $4,300,000, that being the allocation to this state for fiscal 1937 and 1938.

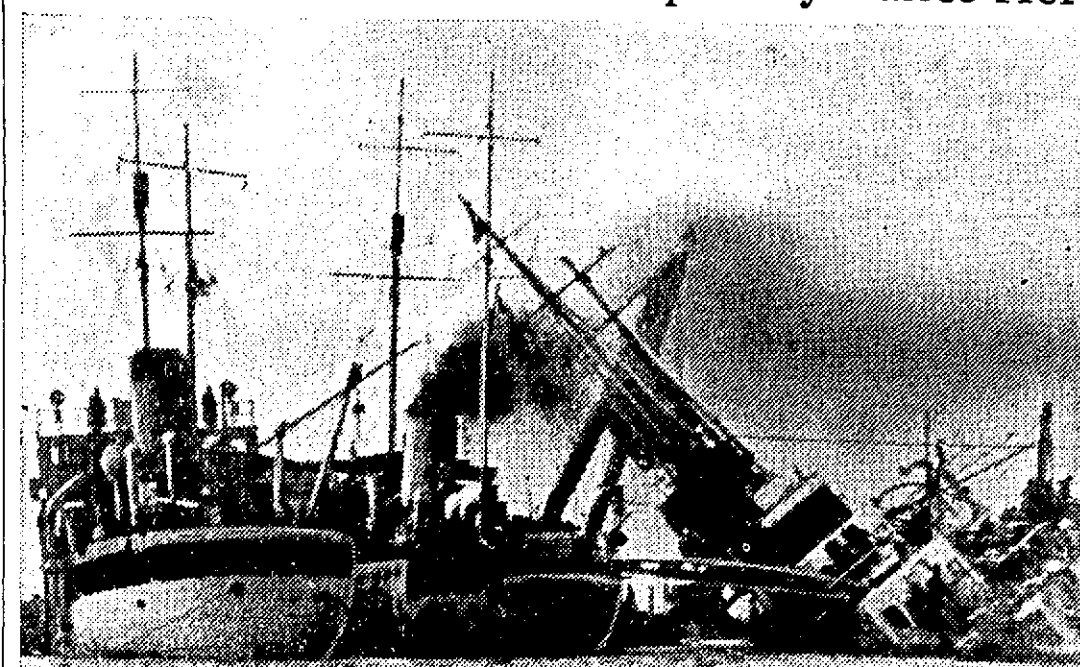

The construction will be under the supervision of the bureau of roads and the governmental funds can be used only for new construction of highways on the federal aid system. This includes the state's major trunk line highways.

Aid for Dirt Roads
Another section of the Barney bill provides for "bringing county roads out of the mud." It increases the turnback to the county highway fund a fourth of a cent on gasoline tax collections.

The turnback, which totaled $370,000 last year, would be increased to $555,000. It is divided among the counties and expended on road work under direction of the county judges.

It follows that a county which received $20,000 in turnback last year could expect $30,000 in the future, providing there was no decline in gasoline tax collections. An increase in such collections would work to the benefit of the counties.

Jap Bombs Sank Her—Jap Navy Raises Her

Funny thing, war. First Japanese aviators used lots of airplane gasoline and aerial bombs to sink this Chinese gunboat in the Yangtze river, and now the Japanese navy is spending money and manpower to raise the vessel to the surface again, as pictured above. But it had to be done, because the sunken boat was interfering with ship movements on a section of the river now controlled by the Japanese. And they'll probably repair the boat for use against her former owners—the Chinese.

The bill is retroactive to last January 1, so each county can look forward to an increase in its quota April 1, when the quarterly distribution is made by the state treasurer. This assures launching of one phase of the program within the next two weeks.

Heavily traveled state roads not listed on the federal aid (trunk line) system will benefit from the Wilkes and Coleman measures.

The measure by Senator Luther J. Wilkes of Helena appropriates $1,000,000 from a surplus in the highway maintenance fund, to which is credited 25 per cent of all highway revenues under terms of the 1934 refunding act.

That by Senator Lucien Coleman of LePanto created a special highway fund of $555,000 for various balances and surpluses not affected by refunding act limitations.

These moneys can be used for higher type surfacing. The courts have held that the changing of a gravel surface to blacktop falls in the definition of maintenance. Or a dirt road could be surfaced with gravel.

Due to failure of Uncle Sam to lend a helping hand, maintenance work has kept pace with deterioration during the past two years. There are about 5,400 miles of gravel roads in the state highway system. The rate of replacement has not kept up with the loss through wear.

Forty-seven contracts for road improvements were let by the highway department in 1937. Approximately 219 miles of highways were improved dennity, and operating them as a government enterprise.

One of the difficulties facing the Mexican government, no what it is obtaining the oil, is how to find a market for it. One proposal already made is to extend westward to the Pacific coast a pipe line now leading from the oil fields to Mexico City. This would give Japan an opportunity to purchase Mexican oil without sending her ships through the Panama Canal.

What U. S. Interests Own
The principal American interests are those of Pan American Foreign Corporation, controlled by Standard of New Jersey. Through a long list of subsidiaries like Huasteca Petroleum Co., Mexican Petroleum Co., Tuxpan Petroleum Co., Cia Petrolera Ulises, and several others, Standard has (or had, one can not be sure at the moment) extensive Mexican properties.

They include 1,400,000 acres owned or leased in the Tampico area. It operates 750 miles of pipe line, a refinery at Tampico, storage tanks at Vera Cruz, 65 miles of railroad, pumping stations, shops, warehouses, and an extensive distributing system.

Continental Oil in Mexico, the Harry Sinclair (Consolidated) interest which had its origin in Maryland Oil, controls 160,000 acres near Vera Cruz, and has a railroad and pipe line from the Alama fields to Tuxpan. Penn-Mex Fuel Co., is its operating company.

Standard of California, through its Richmond Petroleum Co. of Mexico, own (or owned) nearly a half-million acres. All these companies and also Cities Service Transportation Co. and others, operate tanker fleets carrying Mexican oil from Gulf Coast ports.

With smaller companies, American firms are believed to have had control of about 5,000,000 acres of oil lands. To seizure by the government of these lands began last year with expropriation of 350,000 acres from Richmond Petroleum in Tabasco, Campeche and Chiapas.

Mexican oil production is now around 40,000 barrels of crude a year, scarcely more than a fifth of the 1921 figure of 193,397,000. Of this current production, 97 per cent is produced by foreign interests. Of this, British interests (chiefly Mexican Eagle, or Dutch Shell) produced 60 per cent, American firms, 37 per cent.

And the year before his periodic outbursts were featured by a battle royal with other Brooklyn mates in a Pitts-burgh hotel. He's been so intent on winning that he has welcomed a scrap on the field with any and all, and has drawn more than his share of fines from the arbiters.

Times Have Changed
But that was before the reform movement caught up with him. He says he is serious about this alteration of his pattern of living and will bear down to pass the 20-game victory mark this season.

Mungo took the occasion to deny the reports that he and Manager Burlinghame couldn't get along. He asserted he had never said he wouldn't pitch another game for "Bully," a story that whipped around the loop after he ditched the Dodgers.

"Burlinghame is all right. You're bound to disagree with other people some-time and I haven't always seen eye-to-eye with Grimes. But he's okay. He's just like me, a hard fighter, and a hard loser. Nothing tastes good to us after we've taken a licking."

Most of the jobs were complete early in that year and there's been little activity since.

Arkansas received $893,000 from the bureau of roads for grade crossing elimination projects this fiscal year, ending June 30. A similar amount will become available July 1 for use until June 30, 1939. It goes for underpasses, overpasses and relocations to eliminate dangerous grade crossings—none for road construction.

Few delegations from throughout the state seeking allotments for their areas have been received by the highway commission in recent months. The delegations stopped coming to the capital city, realizing there was no money available.

With signing of the bills on Governor Bailey's desk, all that will change. The highway department officials will again become crowded with visitors overnight.

Legislation authorizing six assistants to the president and establishing a welfare department—both features of the senate bill—has been approved by the house.

Sensors will have only a slight breathing spell from controversial legislation after the reorganization bill is out of the way. Two major measures—tax revision and the billion dollar naval expansion program—will follow hard on its heels.

AP Feature Service Writer
Clearwater, Fla.—(AP)—Lingie Mungo, looking just as solemn as a hoot owl perched on a limb, sat back on his haunches in the Dodgers' dugout here the other day and declared he had signed the pledge.

Loafing around his Pageland, S. C., home this winter, Mungo went into a huddle with himself, added up his assets and liabilities, and arrived at the conclusion he hadn't been figuring the angles correctly.

"I haven't had a drink since before Christmas," he said, not without a touch of pride.

Expected Good Season
The Great Reformation seemingly has caught Mungo and Dizzy Dean of the Cardinals the same way the National league's two best right-handers. Eizy has every one confused over at St. Petersburg by his dignified actions around the St. Louis Cardinal camp.

"I'm in better shape than I've been in five years," Mungo declared. "And if I have as good a season as I expect, and 20 bridges built. The work was carried out with the federal money allocated to Arkansas in 1936.

Most of the jobs were complete early in that year and there's been little activity since.

Arkansas received $893,000 from the bureau of roads for grade crossing elimination projects this fiscal year, ending June 30. A similar amount will become available July 1 for use until June 30, 1939. It goes for underpasses, overpasses and relocations to eliminate dangerous grade crossings—none for road construction.

not read the bill and whose information comes only from the press and "misleading propaganda" would be justified in believing the president had "concocted a diabolical scheme to assume all power in government and establish a dictatorship."

Legislation authorizing six assistants to the president and establishing a welfare department—both features of the senate bill—has been approved by the house.

Sensors will have only a slight breathing spell from controversial legislation after the reorganization bill is out of the way. Two major measures—tax revision and the billion dollar naval expansion program—will follow hard on its heels.

And the year before his periodic outbursts were featured by a battle royal with other Brooklyn mates in a Pitts-burgh hotel. He's been so intent on winning that he has welcomed a scrap on the field with any and all, and has drawn more than his share of fines from the arbiters.

Times Have Changed
But that was before the reform movement caught up with him. He says he is serious about this alteration of his pattern of living and will bear down to pass the 20-game victory mark this season.

Mungo took the occasion to deny the reports that he and Manager Burlinghame couldn't get along. He asserted he had never said he wouldn't pitch another game for "Bully," a story that whipped around the loop after he ditched the Dodgers.

"Burlinghame is all right. You're bound to disagree with other people some-time and I haven't always seen eye-to-eye with Grimes. But he's okay. He's just like me, a hard fighter, and a hard loser. Nothing tastes good to us after we've taken a licking."

President's New Car Has "Safety" Features

Two brand new cars, designed especially for the President's Secret Service protectors, made their first appearance when he visited Gainesville, Ga., to dedicate the town's new civic center. President Roosevelt is seen above, leaving in one of them for his Warm Springs Cottage. The new "Secret Service Specials" are extra-long touring machines seating nine. They embody such "safety" features as compartments behind the front seats to hold tear gas and firearms, low doors and reinforced running boards with handrails on the windshields to accommodate the President's guards in standing position.

Quaker Show Presents a New Crooner-Favorite

One of radio's outstanding crooners of today is "Ornamental Johnson," heard Mondays through Fridays over N. B. C.'s Blue network program, "Ant Jimima's Cabin at the Crossroads."

Ornamental Johnson is Roy Moulton Brower, grand-nephew of Robert Brower, who was famous in the days of Edison pictures. He has appeared in stock shows, musicals, burlesques and vaudeville, both as a professional dancer and as a singer. In the East, where he wrote, acted and directed a show of his own, he is known to millions of listeners as the "Prince Charming of Song." But to listeners of the popular Ant Jimima show he is "Ornamental," a boy who made good in Harlem and returned to the "Crossroads" to set the hometown girls' hearts on fire. "Ant Jimima's Cabin at the Crossroads" is a fifteen-minute show presented on the second half of the thirty-minute program sponsored by The Quaker Oats Company. The show is a regular feature of the N. B. C. Network from 9:00 to 9:30 a. m. C. S. T. The first half of the half-hour program is "Margot of Castlewood" starring Barbara Luddy, leading lady of "The First Nighter" program.

Youth Will Have Its Fling, But Not With Washington Ball Team

This is the seventh of a series from the spring training camps.

By HARRY GRAYSON
Sports Editor, NEA Service

ORLANDO, Fla.—Washington got what it needed, but not all it needed, in trading Joe Kuhel to the Chicago White Sox for Zeke Bonura.

I doubt that even the vaunted power of the New Orleans Italian will put the Nationals in the first division of the American League, as Clark Griffith and Bucky Harris so fondly hope.

Even if the Senators obtain good pitching, which is questionable, they are banking on too many old men in key spots—Rick Ferrell behind the bat, Buddy Myer at second, and Al Simmons in left field and in an important place in the batting order.

And the New Orleans Italian not only has a much longer ball than Kuhel, but is two years younger, and has more fighting spirit. Kuhel is the superior defensive man, but in these days of the lively ball, when baserunners stand around waiting to be knocked in, potent pokes in the platoon cover a vast degree of (tangle-footedness in the field.

His Plenty of Fire

There are worse fielding first basemen in the majors than Bonura, however, and he is fast enough, and likely to be a better performer in Washington than he was for Jimmy

Joe Kraskauskas

1937 was win 25 of 26 for Salisbury of the Eastern Shore. He turned in a pair of no-hitters. He has good action, and Harris begs to state that he fears that this 160-pound right-hander might do.

There's Always Bluege

Mickey Livingston and Jake Early, who shifted between Chattanooga and Charlotte last trip, will have to help Rick Ferrell unless somebody else can be uncovered. That just about sizes them up.

Cecil Travis and Buddy Lewis take good care of the left side of the infield, with Johnny Mihalic and old Ossie Bluege the surplus hands in that department.

The outfielding regulars at the outset will be Simmons, Mel Almada, and Johnny Stone. Taft Wright, a fat kid who hit 318 for Chattanooga, and George Case, who came up from Trenton last fall batting an even .300, reckon berths. Case runs like War Ad-

Dykes. Bonura got it into his head that he was indispensable in Chicago where last summer he was voted the most popular player on the city's two major league clubs. The Pale Horse gave up a corking attraction, too.

Bonura is a corking competitor who dearly loves his base hits. It is a treat to see him kick up when he swats a liner into an opposing player's hand.

But he consistently hits safely often and timely enough to bat in something around 100 runs, and that isn't going to hurt the Senators.

It seems natural to see Leon Goslin back in a Washington uniform. Griffith started the Goose off in 1922, and the most distinctive athlete in the business quickly helped the Silver Fox to two flags.

Goslin had to be fetched back from the St. Louis Browns before the Nats stepped again, and when they shipped him to Detroit that entry went directly on to two flags and a world championship.

Maybe Griffith and Harris are playing a hunch, but the Goose, made a free agent by the Tigers, will be carried on an extra fly closer and for pinch-hitting purposes if he shows anything of his old form in workouts.

Plus Hopes on Rocks

Washington's pitchers are Wes Ferrell, Monte Weaver, Elton Housett, Pete Appleton, Ken Chase, Jimmy DeShong, Earl Leonard, Joe Kohlman, and Joe Kraskauskas. Harris has great faith in the southpaws, Chase and Kraskauskas.

Recalled from Chattanooga in the middle of last season, Chase twice beat Red Ruffing and the Yankees, 2-1 and 4-2. In his victory over the men of Joe McCarthy in New York, he struck out Lou Gehrig and Bill Dickey with the bases loaded.

Kraskauskas batted four while dropping one decision for the Senators last fall after winning 14 and losing 9 for a poor Trenton outfit. He is a

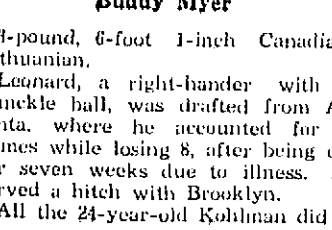

Buddy Myer

203-pound, 6-foot 1-inch Canadian Lithuanian.

Leonard, a right-hander with a knuckle ball, was drafted from Atlanta, where he accounted for 15 games while losing 8, after being out for seven weeks due to illness. He served a hitch with Brooklyn.

All the 24-year-old Kohlman did in

Louis and Thomas Meet Friday Night

Heavyweight Champion to Defend Title Second Time in Month

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Joe Louis' second defense of his heavyweight title within a month, headlines this week's national boxing program.

The Brown Bomber, will be shooting for his 30th victory in 35 fights when he takes on Harry Thomas, rugged Minnesota heavyweight, in a fifteen rounder at Chicago Friday night.

Louis, who knocked out Nathan Mann in three rounds in his last start, will be a prohibitive favorite over Thomas, a courageous battler who does not figure to give the Brown Bomber much more than a good workout. Thomas lasted eight rounds against Max Schmeling before the tauton knocked him out. Boxing experts, looking ahead to Louis' major title defense against Schmeling in June, thus will have some slight basis on which to make comparisons.

Also appearing on the schedule in over-the-weight bouts are Featherweight Champion Henry Armstrong and Welterweight Monarch Barney Ross.

Armstrong, making his last tuncup appearance before meeting Ross in May for the welterweight title, collides with Lew Feldman, New York veteran, in a ten-rounder at the Hippodrome Wednesday night, while Ross is booked for a ten-rounder with Ernie Schaft, of Minneapolis Friday night at Minneapolis.

Two of the foremost challengers for middleweight honors, Fred Apostoli of San Francisco and Glen Lee of Nebraska, clash in a fifteen round return match Friday night at Madison Square Garden. In their first engagement, Apostoli outpointed the Nebraska wildcat.

In the last few months the Gophers have shipped their basketball team to New York, the hockey squad to Los Angeles, the track team to the Texas Relays, and now the baseball team embarks on a spring trip through Mississippi and Louisiana.

Luke Appling's Leg Broken; Blow to Sox

LOS ANGELES, Calif.—(AP)—Luke Appling, star Chicago White Sox shortstop, suffered a fractured leg Sunday as the Sox defeated the Chicago Cubs 10 to 9 in an exhibition game. The injury deals a heavy blow to the Sox hopes for the 1938 season, as Appling was one of the hardest and most consistent hitters on the squad.

Cold Weather Halts Travelers Ball Game

HOT SPRINGS.—(AP)—Rain and cold weather caused postponement Sunday of a scheduled exhibition baseball game here between the Little Rock Travelers of the Southern Association and the Milwaukee Brewers of the American Association. Milwaukee is training in Hot Springs.

Vs. No. 5166
Delinquent Lands in Hempstead County Forfeited for Non-Payment of Taxes and Sold to the State of Arkansas
Plaintiff
Defendants

NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that pursuant to Act No. 119 of the General Assembly of the State of Arkansas of 1935, there has been filed in the office of the Clerk of Hempstead County Chancery Court, the complaint of the State of Arkansas to quiet and confirm in said State the title to certain lands mentioned in said complaint and lying in the County of Hempstead and State of Arkansas.

All persons who can set up any right to the lands so forfeited and sold are hereby warned to appear at the September 1938 term after the publication of this notice, to-wit on the 5th day of September, 1938 and show cause, if any there be, why the title to said forfeited lands should not be confirmed, quieted and vested in the State of Arkansas in fee simple forever.

The description of said lands and the names of the persons, firm or corporation last paying taxes thereon are as follows:

About State Public Schools

The following is one of a series of bulletins being released by the Arkansas Education Association through their Public Relations Committee to give to the people of the state definite information regarding their schools of the state. These questions have been asked by various citizens and are of interest to the state-at-large.

Question 1: How does the amount of money spent in Arkansas for public schools compare with that of other states?

Answer: Arkansas spends less per child for elementary and high school education than any other state in the Union. The average expenditure per pupil in daily attendance in the United States in 1935-36 was $74.00. In Arkansas, it was $25. New York spent $134. States comparable in wealth to Arkansas spent as follows: Mississippi $28; Alabama, $29; Georgia, $31; North Carolina, $31.

Question 2: What factors determine the ability of a state to support schools?

Answer: The wealth of the state and the income of its people.

Question 3: How does the income of the people of Arkansas compare with that of other states?

Answer: Dividing the income of the people of the state by the number of pupils enrolled, the quotient obtained is the income per pupil enrolled. In 1932-34 this amounted to $736. The United States' average was $1900; and the lowest states as follows: Mississippi, $195; Arkansas, $736; South Carolina, $522; Alabama, $773; North Carolina, $857.

Question 4: What per cent of the income of Arkansas people is spent for schools and how does this compare with other states?

Answer: Arkansas spends 2.7 per cent of the income of the people for schools. The average for the United States is 3.4 per cent. The five lowest states spend as follows: Maine, 2.5 per cent; Arkansas, 2.7 per cent; Maryland, 2.7 per cent; Connecticut, 2.75 per cent; Vermont, 2.8 per cent.

Study of a Man About to Relax

How it feels to be a President leaving his office on vacation is eloquently expressed, above, as Mr. Roosevelt entrained for a 10-day stay at Warm Springs. The presidential expression makes it hard to believe that he was worried about the internal TVA row or depressed by European political conditions, a report on which he received from Ambassador-at-Large Norman Davis just before he entrained.

folks as well, she explains. Various state tournaments, contests, and festivals will serve as an incentive to this talent development project. The 4-HH clubs of the state will participate in musical and dramatic contests during the State 4-H club camp. A new contest in play-writing has been set up for 4-H club members this year for the purpose of bringing literary abilities.

Grimes Calls Wilson Best Catcher He Pitched to in Major Leagues

Could Do Everything Behind the Plate Just a Little Better Than Anyone Else, Says Burleigh

By HARRY GRAYSON Sports Editor, NEA Service

ORLANDA Fla.—From Jimmy Archer to Bill Dickey, Burleigh Grimes pitched to a number of fine catchers in his long and exciting whirl down the baseball boulevard, but the manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers names Jimmy Wilson, who called his shots in the world series of 1930 and 1931, as the daddy of the ball. The same Wilson is now putting up with the Phillies, with whom he started his National League career.

"I pitched to better hitters than Wilson, but Jimmy could hit well enough and do everything in back of that bat just a little better than anybody else," says Grimes. "I've seen him out front ready to field a ball almost before the ball left the bat."

Monte Weaver reported to the Washington camp in improved health, and Buckey Harris has high hopes that the scholarly pitcher will regain the form that helped the Senators to a pennant in 1933. Toiling for a poor Trenton club, Joe Krahaukas, large southpaw recruit of the Senators, led his league in strikeouts.

Another White Elephant They're building a $100,000 baseball park of white concrete at Ocala, a central Florida town of 8,000. There will be only 1200 grandstand seats. The place has no club, semi-professional or otherwise, nor is one being formed. The city put up $30,000, the government the rest. The Phillies could use the park, but in its present location it is just another way to spend the taxpayers' money.

Rick Ferrell traces his poor season tennials last year to a broken hand and a split thumb. He promises to thoroughly demonstrate that the Senators are not among the many outfits suffering for want of catching.

Any regular 4-H club member is eligible to enter an original skit in this competition, and county and state winners will be declared. The home demonstration clubs of Arkansas will hold their second annual drama tournament in the late summer.

Home talent numbers may feature most community programs and entertainments, Miss Donahue suggests. Many neighboring communities are trading an evening's entertainment with each other, thus giving their own performers more opportunity to appear in public, besides bringing additional entertainment into their local community centers.

After a winter in Miami, Goose Goslin looks like a broiled lobster. Next to cutting up in the coaches' box, Nick Altrock prefers to ride in airplanes. Mickey Cochrane is another baseball figure who is keenly interested in aviation. Buddy Myer celebrated his 35th birthday by hitting a triple and a single and providing the day's fielding heroes as the Senators outlasted the St. Louis Cardinals.

Right Up His Alley

On the seaboard of the Washington-St. Louis National exhibition game was this advertisement: "Each home run made by a Senator entitles him to a full course Spanish dinner at the Cervantes Spanish Restaurant." The first Nat at bat, Mel Almada, hit a homer. He is a full-blooded Mexican whose ancestors came from Spain. Almada, Harris, and other Senators say that Mickey Owen was calling for bean balls when Almada tangled with the Cardinal catcher the other afternoon. That isn't nice, especially when the boys aren't playing for keeps. In losing to the Nats, 15-13, the Cards made more runs than they have scored during the past four years of exhibition games against the Washington club.

The Nats have whipped the Cards five times in six exhibitions in the past two springs. General Crowder, who closed a brilliant pitching career with Detroit, now owns three minor league baseball clubs and just about everything in Winston-Salem, including a feed store.

The Payoff

By JERRY BRONFIELD NEA Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK.—Don't look now, but that famous among top-notch southpaw pitchers still exists in the American League.

This is a condition that has been peculiar to the junior loop for some time, and it doesn't appear as though 1938 will show any strutting reversal of form. Once you name Vernon (El Goo!) Gomez of the New York Yankees, what have you? Your answer is the same as mine, unless, out of pure sentiment, you continue to classify Old Man Bob Grove among the game's great pitchers.

Granted, of course, that the Red Sox star, who has seen 38 summers come and go, still has his moments, but he

Make Mine Vanilla

Off the baseball diamond, young Bob Feller is just a typical American boy after all. The Cleveland Indians' star pitcher is shown taking a workout on an ice cream cone at the Tribe's training base in New Orleans.

Isn't the firebrand of his Athletic days. With the exception of Gomez the only southpaw in the Yankee camp is Kemp Wicker, a heavyset young man who has been bouncing back and forth between New York and Newark for a couple of seasons now. No one expects him to win a regular starting job with the Manhattan Maulers, but he may survive as a relief hurler.

Beats Yanks, Anyhow

The White Sox have three left-handers in camp, but only one—Thorn-ton Lee—will do any worthwhile pitching. Frank Cook and Bob Usher, a couple of rookies, throw with their left hand, but that's as far as it goes. Lee, who won 12 and dropped 10 last year, victimized the Yankees five times, which should make him worth more than coffee and cakes to the Pale Horse.

Jake Wade is the only Detroit Tiger southpaw of note, although Harry Eisenstat is deserving of passing mention. Wade's biggest claim to fame was pitching a one-hit affair against the Cleveland Indians last year, to halt Johnny Allen's winning streak of 15.

The Indians, meanwhile, have only Earl Whitehill to sling them in from the off-side, and Whitehill never has blinded anyone by his brilliance. Al-Milnar, a rookie up from Milwaukee, might do, but Oscar Vitt isn't casting about wildly for adjectives describing his greatness.

In addition to Grove the Red Sox have three other southpaws—Archie McKinn, Fred Ostermueler, and Lee Rogers. Ostermueler may do, now that he has had an operation on his arm, but McKinn is so-so and Rogers is an untried rookie from Little Rock. Only the Washington Senators can buy a legitimate claim to having young left-handers of any great promise. Buckey Harris has Joe Krahaukas and

Kendall Chase, both of whom let pretty good. Locked Good in '37

Krahaukas, who came up late last year, won four out of five for the Senators during the fog end of the season, while Chase won four of five. Elton Hogsett, who has seen his best days, is the only other portender on the staff.

Chubby Denn, Bill Kalfuss, and Ed Smith make up the Athletics' list. Denn has performed mostly at first base for the last two campaigns, but Connie Mack has an idea the Duke University product can be of more aid on the mound.

Smith had a lot of hard luck in 1937 and should fare better this year, but Kalfuss, who was with Trenton a season ago, has yet to show what he can do.

Vito Tamulis just fair-ly-leads the St. Louis Browns' group of left-handers, which includes Howard Mills, Ewald Pyle, and Emil Bidilli.

Tamulis, who has been up before, won 18 and lost six with Newark in 1937, but his earlier trial with the Yankees didn't prove he had the stuff. Maybe his second trip up will reveal more.

Meanwhile, it looks like the right-handers will have to bear the burden again throughout the league.

With the Hempstead Home Agent Melva Bullington

Foundation plantings around Hempstead county homes are receiving their spring house cleaning. Some new plantings will be made, others will be moved and probably some should be taken out.

Since most plants are set when they are small, the bareness causes over-plantings. As plants gradually reach full size they begin crowding each other and the house apparently shrinks in size because of the dense screen of growth in front and around it.

Mrs. W. G. Darwin of the Bright Star community and Mrs. Leo Garland of the Tlen community, have two newly landscaped homes.

Before removing shrubs and before planting new one, the appearance of the whole group should be planned and visualized. P. T. Ecton, extension horticulturist, University of Arkansas College of Agriculture, suggests. In recent years, and especially around houses on small city lots, there has been a tendency to plant only the fine leaf evergreens, such as the re-dorvites, junipers, or cedars. A monotonous appearance around the base of the house can be avoided by using more variety in the shrubs. The fine leaf evergreens are usually most appropriate at the accent points of the house, which are usually the corners

A wealth of "home talent" is being discovered by Hempstead county home demonstration club and 4-H club recreation leaders.

The Allen club gave a one-act play with three women in it at their March meeting. The Centerville club was favored with a reading by Mrs. Biley Jones of their March meeting.

A major goal in the 1938 rural recreation program in Arkansas is the development of home talent, says Miss June Donahue, specialist in community activities, University of Arkansas College of Agriculture. This refers not only to the discovery and training of talents in young people but a revival of longburied talents in the older folks as well, she explains. Various state tournaments, contests, and festivals will serve as an incentive to this talent development project. The 4-HH clubs of the state will participate in musical and dramatic contests during the State 4-H club camp. A new contest in play-writing has been set up for 4-H club members this year for the purpose of bringing literary abilities.
